

Measure the total volume of water used in the university

Water provided from the public water supply system to each building, office, laboratory, and flat is connected to a water metering system, which measures the volume of water consumption per day. The metering units also count the amount of water utilized in the green area and landscape.

EJUST Water metering to measure water consumption (m^3/d)